ACTION REQUEST: Faculty Appointment Approval
NAME: Nell K. Duke
TITLE: Professor of Education, School of Education
TENURE STATUS: With Tenure
EFFECTIVE DATE: September 1, 2012
APPOINTMENT PERIOD: University Year

On the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the School of Education, I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Nell K. Duke as professor of education, with tenure, School of Education, effective September 1, 2012.

ACADEMIC DEGREES

Professor Duke received her bachelor of arts in 1993 from Swarthmore College, and her master of education in 1995 and doctor of education in 1999, both from Harvard Graduate School of Education.

PROFESSIONAL RECORD

Professor Duke was appointed as an assistant professor in 1998 at Michigan State University. She was promoted to associate professor, with tenure, in 2003 and to professor, with tenure, in 2009.

SUMMARY OF EVALUATION

Professor Duke is one of the country's leading scholars in early literacy development and instruction. She has made numerous contributions to the field of literacy, beginning with her dissertation, which quickly became a landmark study. In it, she addressed a phenomenon that continues to puzzle and challenge educators: "the fourth grade slump," which refers to the dip in performance on reading comprehension measures in grade 4 by significant numbers of students who previously appeared to be making adequate progress in reading. Professor Duke has used this foundational work to support a robust program of research investigating the development and assessment of informational text comprehension with young children.

Professor Duke has demonstrated her potential for effective teaching and professional training as well as graduate mentoring in a variety of ways. One of the remarkable features of her teaching portfolio is the sheer number and range of courses that she has designed and taught: two undergraduate courses, five master's courses, and eight doctoral courses. She conducts her teaching with distinction and was recognized with an "Excellence in Teaching Award" from Michigan State University in 2010. In addition to course instruction, Professor Duke has chaired 13 dissertation committees and currently has six doctoral advisees.

EXCERPTS FROM EXTERNAL REVIEWS

Reviewer A: "What Nell has done is provide the field with, first, clear data on how rare informational texts were/are in primary grade classrooms and in the reading lessons provided primary grade children in American schools. Second, Nell's work has clarified the genre(s) of informational text and initiated using such texts with primary grade students. Third, she has published several important papers of literacy research design and practices as well as papers that address the limitations of educational policy in the U.S.”

Reviewer B: “Throughout her professional writing soon after her entry into the field, Nell has emphasized the synthesis of knowledge on relatively broad topics in reading for purposes of illuminating professionals who seek a deep understanding. Her interpretative integrations of research on the roles of cognitive strategies and knowledge in reading comprehension have been masterful. She is the preeminent interpreter of cognitive research in reading for a professional audience of teacher educators, leaders and graduate students.”

Reviewer C: “Dr. Duke established a trajectory for research productivity in her early career that appeared impossible to sustain in terms of both quantity and quality. The fact is that her work has continued on the same strong path. Dr. Duke’s work has shaped entire lines of work in her field of literacy.”

Reviewer D: “Nell’s focus encompasses the full scope of scholarly issues that bear on comprehensive preparation of teachers and specialists in reading. This includes topics such as coding language to print for primary learners, comprehension processes across the grade levels, electronic reading, multi-media navigation, socioeconomic diversities in reading acquisition, and methodology in reading research. Her breadth of vision enables her to share an unsurpassed perspective on roles and contributions of a representative spectrum of subtopics in the reading research field.”

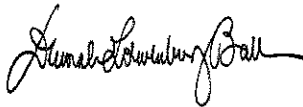

Reviewer E: “The time she takes with students and the research and writing experiences she provides for them are amazing, especially given all of the many professional activities in which she is involved.”

Reviewer F: “In sum, I would judge Nell Duke’s scholarship and contributions to the field to be important, strong, and plentiful. Furthermore, she has had a major impact on both literacy research and classroom practice.”

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATION

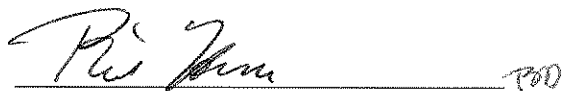

Professor Duke is a preeminent scholar of early literacy. She has a robust and well-funded program of research that is at the intersection of issues that are of considerable significance to literacy educators and educators more generally. We are pleased to recommend the appointment of Nell K. Duke as professor of education, with tenure, School of Education, effective September 1, 2012.

ACTION REQUEST: Approval of a Faculty and Administrative Appointment

NAME: Gunalan Nadarajan

TITLES: Dean and Professor of Art and Design, School of Art and Design

TENURE STATUS: With Tenure

TERM: Deanship: Five Year, Renewable

EFFECTIVE DATE: July 1, 2012

I am pleased to recommend for Regental approval the appointment of Gunalan Nadarajan as dean of the School of Art and Design, for a five-year renewable term, effective July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2017, and professor of art and design, with tenure, effective July 1, 2012. This recommendation follows an international search conducted by a search advisory committee.

Gunalan Nadarajan earned two undergraduate degrees—a B.A. degree in sociology and philosophy in 1990 and a B.S.S. degree in sociology with honors in 1991—from the National University of Singapore, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. He earned a Master of Arts degree in continental philosophy specializing in aesthetics from University of Warwick, UK, in 1994, and a Master of Social Sciences degree in sociology/anthropology from the National University of Singapore in 1997.

He began his academic career in 1991 as a lecturer at the National University of Singapore. In 1996 he joined Lasalle College of the Arts in Singapore as a senior lecturer and director of studies of art theory and art history. Following an international search, he was selected dean of visual arts in 2001. In this role he managed three schools (fine arts, media arts, and design) with responsibility for strategic vision, international partnerships, infrastructure and research planning, personnel management, and fundraising. While serving as dean of visual arts, he became founding director of the Intermedia Lab, an art and technology research laboratory partnering with industry, government, and universities. In 2003 he was designated as the founding dean of research and creative industries by the president of the college in order to develop research and strategically position it within academic initiatives.

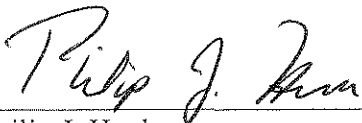

Professor Nadarajan joined Pennsylvania State University in 2005 as associate dean for research and graduate studies and professor of art in the College of Arts and Architecture. There he developed an ambitious plan of strategic interdisciplinary linkages with other colleges through a series of research projects and new initiatives in graduate studies. He significantly increased research funds from external sources and enhanced the research culture within the college.

In 2008 Professor Nadarajan was recruited to the newly created position of vice provost for research at the Maryland Institute College of Art (MICA) in Baltimore to help the institution establish a robust research infrastructure and a strategic agenda for developing research. He was the first senior academic dedicated to research to be appointed in an art college in the United States. In 2011, he also took on the role of dean of graduate studies. In that senior administrative position he was responsible for the strategic and operational management of 16 graduate programs in art, design, and media serving over 300 students; an operating budget of over $8m; and three research centers.

In his scholarly research, curatorial work, teaching, professional consultancies and creative research projects Professor Nadarajan has made outstanding contributions in the interdisciplinary field of art, science, and technology. In 2004 he was elected as fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, UK. His publications include Ambulations (2000); Construction Site (edited, 2004); Contemporary Art in Singapore (co-authored, 2007); Place Studies in Art, Media, Science and Technology: Historical Investigations on the Sites and Migrations of Knowledge (co-edited, 2009); The Handbook of Visual Culture (co-edited, 2012); and over 100 book chapters, catalogue essays and academic articles. His writings have been translated into more than twelve languages, including Mandarin, Japanese, French, and Russian. Professor Nadarajan has curated twenty international exhibitions in Singapore, Indonesia, Korea, Germany, Mexico, U.S., and New Zealand. He was artistic co-director of the Ogaki Biennale in Japan in 2006 and artistic director of the International Symposium on Electronic Art in Singapore in 2008. His published work, conference papers, and international lectures have embraced contemporary art; architecture; art history; robotic arts; critical theory; intersecting histories of art, science and technology; cyberculture; and most recently the changing role of arts and design research.

Professor Nadarajan is internationally recognized as an art theorist and curator committed to an interdisciplinary education for students. With his extensive international and professional experience, I am confident that he will lead the School to achieve enhanced academic programs, improved physical and research capacities, further community outreach, and a rising national and international profile. I recommend his appointments with great enthusiasm.

ACTION REQUEST: Faculty Appointment Approval
NAME: Stanford Olsen
TITLE: Professor of Music, School of Music,
Theatre & Dance
TENURE STATUS: With Tenure
EFFECTIVE DATE: September 1, 2012
APPOINTMENT PERIOD: University Year

On the recommendation of the School of Music, Theatre & Dance Executive Committee, I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Stanford Olsen as professor of music, with tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance, effective September 1, 2012.

ACADEMIC DEGREES AND AWARDS

Professor Olsen received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Utah and the Artists Diploma in opera from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music, which named him Alumnus of the Year in 1992. Additional honors include winning the prestigious Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions in 1986, and the coveted Walter W. Naumberg Foundation Award for Excellence in Recital Repertoire in 1989. In 1990, he was winner of the first annual Renee Richards Career Grant for Tenors from The Richard Tucker Foundation. In 2010, he was named Alumnus of the Year from the University of Utah.

PROFESSIONAL RECORD

In 1997, Stanford Olsen was appointed as a professor of voice and Shelfer Eminent Scholar at Florida State University, with tenure, a position he currently holds. A long-time coach for members of the Metropolitan Opera's Young Artist Development Program, he has taught young singers in master classes at Santa Fe Opera, St. Louis Opera Theatre, the Eastman School of Music, Tanglewood, New England Conservatory, and The Manhattan School of Music.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITY

Professor Olsen is a world-renowned tenor who has performed over 150 times with New York's Metropolitan Opera and has been heard in all the world's major opera houses, including La Scala, Deutsche Opera Berlin, Australian Opera and San Francisco Opera. Professor Olsen's recordings of Bach, Mozart and Rossini have received critical praise, including a 1995 nomination for Grammy Award for Rossini's Tancredi with Alberto Zedda on the Naxos label. His 1999 Telarc recording of Dvorak's Stabat Mater, with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra and Robert Shaw, also received a Grammy nomination. The tenor soloist of choice for performances by the New York Philharmonic, Chicago Symphony and the orchestras of Philadelphia, San Francisco, Saint Louis, Montreal and Atlanta, Professor Olsen has begun to concentrate more on oratorio rather than operatic performances. This shift allows him to continue his performing career at the same stratospheric level without the necessity of long absences from his teaching responsibilities. Observing the recent changes in the landscape of the singing profession, background in oratorio, lieder, new music and other forms, are critical for students and important preparation for their careers in the field. Professor Olsen's credentials include significant performances in new music and in music-theater works as well, including live recordings of gala concerts of Sweeney Todd by Stephen Soldheim and Candide by Leonard Bernstein at Lincoln Center. Professor Olsen's vast experience and expertise in all these areas would add significant breadth to the offerings of our vocal program.

SUMMARY OF EVALUATION

Professor Olsen's teaching skills continue to grow in stature; he has worked with the singers in the Metropolitan Opera's Lindeman Young Artist program for five years and has given master classes at major music festivals such as Tanglewood and Santa Fe. He has continued to refine and extend his teaching abilities, immediately apparent at his recent master class with our students. In addition to what is thought by many to be among the most refined and beautiful tenor voices in the world, Professor Olsen's work with students is inspiring and highly effective. It is worth noting that University of Michigan voice faculty who have sent their undergraduates to Professor Olsen at Florida State University for graduate study report high student satisfaction and impressive skill development.

EXCERPTS FROM EXTERNAL REVIEWERS

Reviewer A: "Stanford Olsen is one of the finest lyric tenors singing today. I have watched him teach students of all levels and have been impressed by the skills he uses and the grace with which he uses them; he is a master teacher. He is a model artist, the kind that all students should emulate, and his career as both educator and artist make him truly unique."

Reviewer B: "In addition to his commercial recordings, Mr. Olsen has collaborated with the most celebrated maestri of our time: Ozawa, Shaw, Zedda, Dutoit and Rilling, to name a few. Major U.S. symphony orchestra appearances, along with the Berlin and Israel Philharmonics, and the Montreal Symphony are strong measures of his prominence as a concert soloist."

Reviewer C: "Professor Olsen's career as a professional singer must be viewed in its entirety, as his professional reputation will bring much positive acclaim to the University of Michigan. He has sung at most the world's greatest opera houses and with many of the finest conductors in the field. Professor Olsen is known throughout the profession as a stylish, technically gifted, personable artist who is a member of a highly elite class of singers internationally."

Reviewer D: "Mr. Olsen has had a fine and substantial professional singing career. He has maintained a professional profile with his singing through his teaching career. He also has a healthy list of student accomplishments – an important barometer of his effectiveness as a teacher."

Reviewer E: "Former student comments are always positive, both about emotional support and technical knowledge. He gives good advice about breath and sound, and he integrates this technical knowledge with a superb and sophisticated knowledge of the music. To hear him sing is sheer joy. His artistry is a tribute to the music.”

Reviewer F: “He is a great artist who always performs impeccably with his beautiful, lyrical tenor voice, interpretive skill and knowledge of musical styles. The world of classical singing is an extremely competitive field. That Professor Olsen’s students have gone on to sing at the major opera houses of the world, while others have pursued academic careers, speak to the excellence of his teaching.”

Professor Olsen is in the very top tier of performers in his generation. He is well known throughout the profession as a stellar musician. His impressive and deep curriculum vita reveals an artist of the highest caliber in operatic, concert, and oratorio repertoire. He is also a dynamic, experienced and proven pedagogue. His national and international reputation as one of today’s great performers, his record of exemplary teaching, and his bearing as a congenial colleague and strong collaborator make him an ideal prospect for our faculty. On behalf of the School of Music, Theatre & Dance, I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Stanford Olsen as professor of music, with tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance, effective September 1, 2012.

Professor Katz earned a Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Southern California in 1966. Since that time, he has enjoyed a prominent career performing in concerts around the world with some of the world's most celebrated vocalists including Marilyn Horne, Frederica von Stade, Kiri Te Kanawa, Kathleen Battle, Jose Carreras, Cecilia Bartoli, and David Daniels. Professor Katz was dubbed "dean of accompanists" by The Los Angeles Times, and was the recipient of Musical America's "Accompanist of the Year" award in 1998. He has performed innumerable recitals at Carnegie Hall, the Salzburg Festival, has toured in Australia and Japan, and has performed at La Scala, the Paris Opera, and the Edinburgh Festival. His concerts are frequently broadcast both nationally and internationally. In addition to his prestigious performing career, Professor Katz continues to be one of the School's most eminent educators, providing instruction to a wide range of piano and vocal artists, and he is a frequent conductor of the School's opera productions.

It is with great pleasure that I recommend the reappointment of Martin E. Katz as the Artur Schnabel Collegiate Professor of Music in Piano, School of Music, Theatre & Dance, for a five-year renewable term, effective June 1, 2012 through May 31, 2017.

ACTION REQUEST: Approval of Reappointment to an Endowed Professorship

NAME: Daniel J. Klionsky

CURRENT TITLES: Alexander G. Ruthven Professor of Life Sciences, Life Sciences Institute, Professor of Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and Professor of Biological Chemistry, without tenure, Medical School

TITLE BEING RENEWED: Alexander G. Ruthven Professor of Life Sciences, Life Sciences Institute

TERM: Five Years, Renewable

EFFECTIVE DATES: July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2017

On the recommendation of Alan R. Saltiel, Ph.D., John Jacob Abel Collegiate Professor and Mary Sue Coleman Director of the Life Sciences Institute, we are pleased to recommend the reappointment of Daniel J. Klionsky as the Alexander G. Ruthven Professor of Life Sciences, Life Sciences Institute, for a five-year renewable term, effective July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2017.

Alexander G. Ruthven, president emeritus, served as president of the University of Michigan from 1929 to 1951. The Alexander G. Ruthven Professorship in Life Sciences was established by the Regents in June 2007. Funding for this professorship will be provided by gift funds designated by President Mary Sue Coleman.

Daniel Klionsky earned his Bachelor of Arts at the University of California, Los Angeles, in 1980 and his Doctorate at Stanford University in 1986. After four years of post-doctoral training at the California Institute of Technology, Professor Klionsky began his teaching career as an assistant professor at the University of California, Davis, in 1990. He was promoted to associate professor in microbiology in 1994 and professor in 1997. Professor Klionsky was a fellow of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation in 1997-1998. In 2000, he joined the University of Michigan as a professor in the Department of Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology and was appointed as professor of biological chemistry in the Medical School in 2001.

Professor Klionsky has a distinguished record of publication and scientific discovery. He is the author of over 100 scholarly articles and essays published in the most prestigious biomedical journals. He has presented at over 90 invited lectures and seminars over the past twenty years at major conferences in the United States, Japan, Germany, the Netherlands, Australia and France. He holds two biomedical patents.

Professor Klionsky is an extremely creative cell biologist who studies how proteins are moved around cells and how the organelles, machines within the cells, develop and do their work. Sorting the proteins out so that they go to the proper organelle and do the right job is essential to the proper functioning of the cell, but little is understood about it. His work also explores "autophagy," the main protein disassembly and recycling system inside the cell, and how it responds to starvation conditions by cannibalizing parts of the cell. This work offers intriguing clues into a variety of human diseases, including cancer, cardiomyopathy (weakening and enlargement of the heart), and neurodegenerative diseases like Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.

Professor Klionsky has received national recognition for his innovative teaching style of undergraduate biology called "active learning." This unique method of teaching, where textbooks are optional, focuses on distributing his lecture notes to the class, lecturing on the topic and then quizzing the class the following day. In 2003, Professor Klionsky was named a Distinguished Teaching Scholar by the National Science Foundation. In 2006, he was named an education mentor in the Life Sciences by the National Academies and he also received a $1.5 million grant from the Howard Hughes Medical Institute to promote innovative teaching of introductory science at research universities. In 2009, he was named as an AAAS fellow.

We are very pleased to recommend the reappointment of Daniel J. Klionsky as the Alexander G. Ruthven Professor of Life Sciences, Life Sciences Institute, for a five-year renewable term, effective July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2017.

NAME: Matthias Kretzler, M.D.

CURRENT TITLE: Professor of Internal Medicine, with tenure,

ADDITIONAL TITLE: Warner-Lambert/Parke-Davis Professor of Medicine,
Medical School

EFFECTIVE DATES: May 1, 2012 through August 31, 2016

On the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the Medical School, I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Matthias Kretzler, M.D. as the Warner-Lambert/Parke-Davis Professor of Medicine, Medical School, effective May 1, 2012 through August 31, 2016.

The Warner-Lambert/Parke-Davis Professorship in Medicine was established in 1994 through a generous gift from the Warner-Lambert Company. The gift is intended to support scientific activities of a senior-level faculty member in the Medical School, specifically directed to research in the fields of basic chemistry, molecular biology, biotechnology, genetics and/or human gene therapy.

Dr. Kretzler received his M.D. from the University of Heidelberg in 1993. He completed a research fellowship at the University of Michigan in 1994. He then completed an internship and residency from 1994-2002 at the University of Munich in Germany. Dr. Kretzler was appointed as an assistant professor, at that institution, in 2002. In 2005, he joined the faculty at the University of Michigan as an assistant professor. He was also appointed as a research associate professor in Computational Medicine and Bioinformatics in 2008. Dr. Kretzler was promoted to professor of internal medicine, with tenure, and to research professor in Computational Medicine and Bioinformatics in 2009.

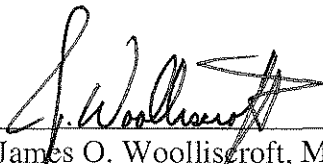

Dr. Kretzler's major research focus is on the use of modern molecular biology tools to better understand disease mechanism activated in human renal biopsies. In his laboratory, he currently evaluates these novel tools for molecular diagnosis of kidney and transplant failure in international multicenter studies. His longstanding interest has been on glomerular filtration barrier failure. Dr. Kretzler has been very prolific in his research, with 162 publications, and funding from the NIH, the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, as well as private funding.

He is recognized internationally for his work, and has presented at over 180 venues, locally, nationally, and internationally.

Dr. Kretzler serves on the editorial board of numerous journals, including Clinical and Experimental Nephrology and Clinical Nephrology. He is a grant reviewer for the NIH, the German Research Foundation of Germany, Genome Canada, and the Wellcome Trust of the United Kingdom. Dr. Kretzler has received multiple awards for his research, including the Young Investigator Award from the American Society of Nephrology, the Mary Jane Kugel Award from the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation and the Leadership Circle Investigator Award from the Alliance for Lupus Research.

Dr. Kretzler is a well-respected scientist and clinician who focuses on the diagnosis and management of glomerular diseases, and is an ideal candidate for this professorship. I am, therefore, pleased to recommend the appointment of Matthias Kretzler, M.D. as the Warner-Lambert/Parke-Davis Professor of Medicine, Medical School, effective May 1, 2012 through August 31, 2016.

ADDITIONAL TITLE: Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, School of Education

TERM: Three Years

EFFECTIVE DATES: September 1, 2012 through August 31, 2015

I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Carla O'Connor as associate dean for academic affairs, School of Education, for a three-year term, effective September 1, 2012 through August 31, 2015.

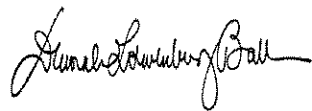

Professor O'Connor received her bachelor of arts from Wesleyan University in 1988. She received her master of arts in 1991 and her doctorate in 1996 from the University of Chicago. She joined the faculty of the University of Michigan in 1996 as an assistant professor, was promoted to associate professor in 2004 and, pending Regents approval, to professor in 2012.

Professor O'Connor is a leading sociologist of education with expertise in the areas of African American achievement, urban education, and ethnographic methods. Her work includes examinations of how Black identity is differentially constructed across multiple contexts and informs achievement outcomes, how Black people's perceptions of opportunity vary within space and influence academic orientation, and how Black educational resilience and vulnerability is structured by social, institutional, and historical forces.

Both her empirical and conceptual efforts contend with long-standing explanations of why Black and other marginalized youth underachieve in school. Most of her work contends with master narratives of under-achievement in low-income and non-Asian minority communities.

I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Carla O'Connor as associate dean for academic affairs, School of Education, for a three-year term, effective September 1, 2012 through August 31, 2015.

On the recommendation of Michael W. Mulholland, M.D., Ph.D., the Frederick A. Collier Distinguished Professor and Chair of the Department of Surgery, I am pleased to recommend the additional appointment of Grace L. Su, M.D. as associate professor of surgery, without tenure, Medical School, effective May 1, 2012.

Dr. Su received her M.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1988. She completed her internship, residency and a fellowship in gastroenterology at the University of Pittsburgh from 1988-1994. Dr. Su joined the faculty at that institution in 1994 as an assistant professor. She was appointed as an assistant professor at the University of Michigan in 1995, and was promoted to associate professor, with tenure, Department of Internal Medicine, in 2002.

Dr. Su has achieved national recognition in the field of gastroenterology and has a longstanding interest in studying the mechanisms of liver injury, particularly on the role played by the innate immune system. Her national and international reputation is demonstrated by multiple visiting professorships, seminars, and invited lectures. She has a well-established reputation in the field, having contributed 68 peer-reviewed publications to the scientific literature, many of which have been published in prestigious journals such as the Archives of Surgery, Surgery Forum, Gastroenterology, Journal of Immunology, and Transplantation. Of the 68 peer-reviewed publications, 37 have been in collaboration with the Department of Surgery.

Since her arrival at the University of Michigan in 1995, Dr. Su has collaborated with the Department of Surgery on numerous scientific projects and publications and has presented her work regularly. DATES OF CURRENT LEAVE: August 1, 2010 through June 30, 2012
TIME EXTENSION REQUESTED: July 1, 2012 through November 14, 2012

It is recommended that Steven P. Croley be granted an extension of leave of absence for part of the fall 2012 term, effective July 1, 2012 through November 14, 2012.

He interacts daily with the President's senior advisors, who in addition to and as an extension of the President are his "clients." Professor Croley substantively works on major regulatory policy issues and constitutional law issues that are of direct interest to the President.

Professor Croley would like to stay at the White House until after the November election. For a number of reasons it would be difficult for Steven to leave at the end of his current leave period.

It is recommended that Kristen R. LeFevre be granted an extension of leave of absence, effective September 1, 2012 through December 31, 2012.

Professor LeFevre is currently serving as a research scientist with Google. Professor LeFevre's work at Google involves developing models of user behavior and engagement in online social networks. During the first year, she completed her first project and is now on her second project. An extension would allow her to continue developing and applying new large-scale data mining techniques, and working with state-of-the-art 'big data' systems (e.g., MapReduce and Big Table). We believe the University of Michigan will benefit from Professor LeFevre's continued involvement in these initiatives.

We request approval of this extension of leave of absence for Professor Kristen R. LeFevre.

ACTION REQUEST: Establishment of Fifty Additional Distinguished University Professorships

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 1, 2012

In 1947, the Board of Regents authorized the establishment of nine Distinguished University Professorships for the purpose of recognizing distinguished members of the University faculty. The Regents approved increases in the number of Distinguished University Professorships by three in 1989, six in 1994, twelve in 1998, and twenty in 2004, bringing the total to 50.

Distinguished University Professors are appointed by the Regents upon recommendation of the president and the provost and executive vice president for academic affairs, with the assistance of the Selection Advisory Committee on Distinguished University Professorships in accordance with the following selection criteria:

- A. A Distinguished University Professor should have attained national and international recognition for originality and for scholarly achievement.
- B. A distinguished University Professor should have demonstrated teaching skill and recognized breadth of interest as well as depth of achievement in their own field.
- C. The Distinguished University Professor should be awarded only to members of the faculty who have been serving the University; it should not be used as a recruiting device for bringing distinguished people from other institutions to the campus.

Distinguished University Professorships are an important means of recognizing the greatest achievement of University faculty. In an ever increasingly competitive environment, these professorships are vital to keeping our very best faculty by telling them, in the clearest way possible, how much they are valued. After doing an analysis of the number of professorships available compared to the number of faculty on the campus, I recommend, that the current number of Distinguished University Professorships be increased by 50, bringing the total to 100. Since only slightly more than six percent of our professors would be eligible for this particular distinction, the professorships will continue to be highly prestigious.

ACTION REQUESTED: Establishment of an Endowed Professorship
PROPOSED NAME: Albert M. Mattocks Professorship in Pharmacy, College of Pharmacy
EFFECTIVE DATE: May 1, 2012

With the approval of the Executive Committee of the College of Pharmacy, we are pleased to recommend the establishment of the Albert M. Mattocks Professorship in Pharmacy, College of Pharmacy, effective May 1, 2012.

The $2 million endowed professorship is being established by a generous gift from a donor who wishes to remain anonymous. The purpose of the professorship is to allow a focus on any of the basic pharmaceutical sciences. Dr. Albert M. Mattocks received his BS in pharmacy from UNC in 1942 and his doctorate in pharmaceutical chemistry from the University of Maryland in 1945. Dr. Mattocks was a unique and rare individual who influenced the profession of pharmacy tremendously. He was one of the early leaders in the field of pharmaceuticals who helped pave the transition of pharmacy from an "art" to a "science." Dr. Mattocks entered academia at the University of Michigan in 1953 and stayed until 1966. Despite his strong commitment to science as a researcher in the realm of drug absorption he found time to be a highly regarded mentor and teacher. He co-authored 65 research papers and served as a major advisor for over 20 doctoral students who are now found teaching and doing research the world over.

Appointments to the Professorship will be made upon the recommendation of the dean and Executive Committee of the College of Pharmacy to the Regents. Appointments may be made for any length of time in accordance with the policies of the College and may be renewable.

This professorship continues the long-standing relationship between the donor and the College of Pharmacy. The Albert M. Mattocks Professorship in the College of Pharmacy will serve to better prepare our pharmacy students regarding all aspects of pharmacy and is a perfect tribute to one of the College's most distinguished supporters, whose dedication to the College and profession of pharmacy are deeply appreciated. Therefore, we recommend that the Regents formally establish the Albert M. Mattocks Professorship in Pharmacy, College of Pharmacy, effective May 1, 2012.

ACTION REQUEST: Approval to Name an Existing Collegiate Professorship

PROPOSED NAME: George Herbert Mead Collegiate Professorship in Human-Computer Interaction, School of Information

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 1, 2012

The School of Information seeks to name an existing collegiate professorship for George Herbert Mead, who was a faculty member at the University of Michigan from 1891-1894. A stipend funded from the Office of Budget and Planning resources will accompany this professorship.

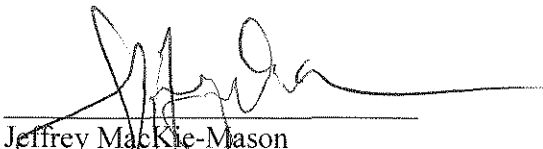

George Herbert Mead received his Bachelor of Arts from Oberlin College in 1883 and his MA degree from Harvard University in 1888. Professor Mead's work on his PhD degree was interrupted in the spring of 1891 by the offer of an instructorship in philosophy and psychology at the University of Michigan. Professor Mead left to take a position as an assistant professor in the philosophy department at the University of Chicago in 1894. He was promoted to associate professor in 1902 and to professor in 1907.

Professor Mead is a major figure in the history of American philosophy and one of the founders of Pragmatism along with James Hayden Tufts and John Dewey. Through his teaching, writing, and posthumous publications, Professor Mead has exercised a significant influence in 20th century social theory, among both philosophers and social scientists. In particular, Professor Mead's theory of the emergence of mind and self out of the social process of significant communication has become the foundation of the symbolic interactionist school of sociology and social psychology.

Professor Mead's major contribution to the field of social psychology was his attempt to show how the human self arises in the process of social interaction, especially by way of linguistic communication. Both John Dewey and Alfred North Whitehead consider Professor Mead a thinker of the highest order. In his lifetime, Professor Mead published about 100 scholarly articles and reviews.

A distinguished faculty member will be nominated to receive this honor. The initial term of appointment will be for five years with the possibility of renewal.

ACTION REQUEST: Faculty Appointment Approval
NAME: Cathleen L. Miller
TITLE: Associate Professor of Accounting, School of Management
TENURE STATUS: Without Tenure
EFFECTIVE DATE: September 1, 2012
APPOINTMENT PERIOD: University Year

The Acting Dean and the School of Management at the University of Michigan-Flint, are pleased to recommend the appointment of Cathleen L. Miller as associate professor of accounting, without tenure, School of Management, effective September 1, 2012.

ACADEMIC DEGREES

Professor Miller received her B.B.A. from the University of Michigan-Flint in 1985, her M.A.S. from Northern Illinois University in 1994, and her Ph.D. from University of Kentucky in 1998. Professor Miller is a certified public accountant (CPA) in Michigan.

PROFESIONAL RECORD

Professor Miller previously joined the University of Michigan-Flint as an assistant professor of accounting from 1998 to 2005. During that time she developed and taught a two-week managerial accounting course at the International Academy for Business and Banking (IABB), Togliatti, Russia. She left and served as an assistant professor of Saginaw Valley State University from 2005 to 2006, and joined Wayne State University as an associate professor of accounting from 2007 through present.

SUMMARY OF EVALUATION

Professor Miller is a highly experienced educator with expertise in financial accounting, auditing, and managerial accounting. She has published 12 articles in quality refereed journals, over 40 conference proceedings and abstracts, and presented at 27 regional and national professional conferences. Her scholarly works have been published in prestigious venues such as Auditing: A Journal of Practice & Theory, Behavioral Research in Accounting, Managerial Auditing, and The Journal of Accounting Research. Her research interests include auditing, certain behavioral aspects of the audit process, the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, and internal control risk assessment. She is an active member of the research community in her field and has masterfully balanced her research, focusing on both the theoretical aspects of her field as well as its practical significance. In addition, Professor Miller is an ad hoc reviewer for three scholarly journals and has served as a reviewer for over 30 national and regional conferences.

In the area of teaching, Professor Miller has taught a number of different accounting courses at her previous institutions, affording her to have a relatively broad specialization in the field of accounting. This diversity of teaching expertise is highly beneficial for academic units that do not have many faculty and must rely on relatively few faculty to cover many courses.

EXERPTS FROM EXTERNAL REVIEWERS

Reviewer (A):

“Professor Miller’s work is of consistent, high quality. I’ve been aware of her work for several years. Her work extends to topics of great importance to our profession. For example, her paper in AJPT examines an important aspect of the expectations gap which represents the difference in user perceptions of the work performed by auditors. ... The journals in which she has published are of high quality. For example, AJPT is widely known as the top journal in Auditing.”

Reviewer (B):

“What I noted during my review of these papers, is that my perception of Dr. Miller as a careful researcher who is painstaking in the theoretical development of her papers is accurate. She designs studies that are well grounded and logically address the questions of interest, and her questions most often lead to findings that can be immediately implemented in practice.”

Reviewer (C):

“Over time, Dr. Miller developed a reasonably strong research profile. Her performance in the auditing research paradigm is commendable. Her studies on effectiveness of audit reviews as feedback mechanism, the expectations gap issue in the context of Standards for Accounting and Review Services (SSARS) Number (No.) 8, ‘Amendment to SSARS No. 1, Compilation and Review of Financial Statements,’ the effects of mentoring and organizational justice on auditors’ relationships with their non-mentor supervisors and the effects of skill level and the two task complexity dimensions, clarity and quantity of information, internal control risk assessments, deserve special mention.”

Reviewer (D):

“Two of those manuscripts have been published in widely-respected journals. Reinstein et al. (2006) was published by Auditing, ... and Miller et al. (2006) was published by Behavioral Research in Accounting. I am confident that manuscripts deemed worthy of publication by reviewers and editors of those journals will be both rigorous and credible. ... I am less familiar with the Managerial Auditing Journal where the other two manuscripts have been published. However, after reviewing those articles, I believe that both studies are also rigorous and credible.”

Reviewer (E):

“I reviewed the four papers you sent and believe all have significance to behavioral research in accounting and auditing. While I thought two of the papers, ‘Auditor and Non-Mentor Supervisor Relationships: Effects of Mentoring and Organizational Justice’ and ‘The Effects of Task Complexity and Skill on Over/Under-Estimation of Internal Control’ both in Managerial Auditing Journal, were sound, interesting, and make a contribution to the literature, I will focus my discussion on the other two papers where I believe an even more significant contribution is made to the literature.”

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATION:

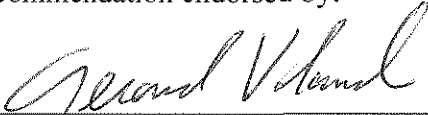

Professor Miller is solid scholar with a highly diverse teaching expertise and a strong record of service to her profession. The Acting Dean and the School of Management are very pleased to recommend the appointment of Cathleen L. Miller as associate professor of accounting, without tenure, School of Management, effective September 1, 2012.
