ACTION REQUEST

Subject: Report of Faculty Retirement

Action Requested: Adoption of Retirement Memoir

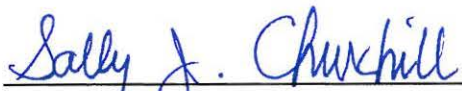

Peter M. Bauland, Ph.D., associate professor of English language and literature in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, will retire from active faculty status on May 31, 2013.

Professor Bauland received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania in 1953, 1955, and 1964, respectively. He joined the University of Michigan faculty as an assistant professor in 1964 and was promoted to associate professor in 1969.

Professor Bauland's research focused on film studies, modern drama, modern comparative literature, and translations, with a special emphasis on German and American Theater. He authored The Hooded Eagle: German Drama on the New York Stage (1968) and Gerhart Hauptmann's Before Daybreak: A translation and an Introduction (1978) and a 1977 translation of Arthur Schnitzler's novella The Judge's Wife (1925). Professor Bauland taught popular courses on drama, film study, comedy, Shakespeare, comparative modern literature, screenwriting, and playwriting. His professional and community service includes several posts for Fulbright programs, the International Exchange of Scholars, the Midwest Modern Language Association, the Michigan Theater, and numerous appearances as an actor on stage, screen, television, and radio. Professor Bauland has received distinguished fellowships from the Fulbright-Hays Program, the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies.

The Regents now salute this distinguished teacher and researcher by naming Peter M. Bauland associate professor emeritus of English language and literature.
