ACTION REQUEST: Faculty Appointment Approval
NAME: Richard J. Auchus, M.D., Ph.D.
TITLE: Professor of Internal Medicine, Medical School
TENURE STATUS: With Tenure
EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011
APPOINTMENT PERIOD: 12 Months

On the recommendation of John M. Carethers, M.D., the John G. Searle Professor of Internal Medicine and Chair of the Department of Internal Medicine, and with the concurrence of the Executive Committee of the Medical School, I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Richard J. Auchus, M.D., Ph.D. as professor of internal medicine, with tenure, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

Academic Degrees:

Dr. Auchus received the M.D. degree and the Ph.D. degree in pharmacology from Washington University in St. Louis in 1988.

Professional Record:

Dr. Auchus completed his residency in internal medicine at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics in 1991, and a fellowship in endocrinology at the University of Texas Health Sciences Center in San Antonio. He then pursued postdoctoral research training in pediatric endocrinology at the University of California, San Francisco. From 1993-1995, he served as a staff physician at Wilford Hall United States Air Force Medical Center in Texas, and subsequently moved to the University of California, San Francisco as an assistant research endocrinologist in the Department of Pediatrics. In 1999, he was appointed as an assistant professor in the Department of Internal Medicine at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas. Dr. Auchus was promoted to associate professor, with tenure, in 2005, and then to professor in 2008.

Summary of Evaluation:

Dr. Auchus is a respected member of the scientific community who has been invited to speak at numerous regional, national, and international venues. His research focuses on adrenal disease and adrenal steroid biosynthesis. He is highly accomplished in this field, with more than 100 peer-reviewed publications and 19 book chapters. Dr. Auchus is also co-inventor on two patents. He has a solid record of grant funding; currently he has a Burroughs Wellcome Clinical Scientist Award in Translational Research and a March of Dimes grant, and is principal investigator on a center grant and two foundation awards.

Recent and Significant Publications:

Dr. Auchus has amassed an impressive record of teaching in didactic courses for graduate students, as well as bedside teaching in clinics. He is active in providing continuing medical education to fellows and residents. In 2007, he received the Jean D. Wilson, M.D. Award for Excellence in Scientific Mentoring at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School. Dr. Auchus served as associate program director for the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Scientist Training Program and received outstanding teaching evaluations from residents at that institution.

External Reviews:

Reviewer A: "Richard has established himself as an internationally recognized researcher in the biology and functions of steroidogenic P450s and the role of adrenal tissue in hypertensive disease...His collective scholarly activities would place him among the top tenth percentile if I were to rank him in terms of his peers in the field of adrenal research."

Reviewer B: "I consider Dr. Auchus to be an exceptionally talented, creative, and productive research scientist. I found his research proposals to be very creative. His work has the potential to advance our understanding of hormone dependent diseases and discovery of potential therapies."

Reviewer C: "His work on adrenal steroid biosynthesis has been very important with major impact in the field. Review of his CV shows continued productivity both at the basic and clinical translational science levels, with many publications in high impact journals as well as lectures at numerous national and international meetings and institutions.”

Reviewer D: “...Rich is extremely productive and there is every indication that he will continue to be so for many years. He has not only built his own program to a very high level, but he has added important collaborators with whom he is certain to do great science.”

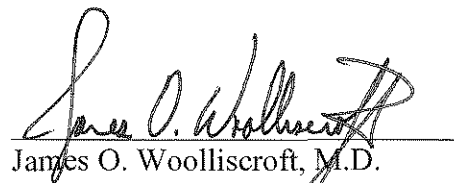

Reviewer E: “His adrenocortical and androgen-based translational research program is top-notch and has impacted the field in critical and formative ways....His educational efforts are admired by his peers and he is a highly sought after speaker for visiting professorships.”

Dr. Auchus has a remarkable record of service. He is a consultant to the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency in Colorado Springs, and is on the Medical Advisory Board of the Congenital Adrenal Hyperplasia Research Education and Support (CARES) Foundation. He reviews for numerous journals and is currently a member of the editorial board of Clinical Endocrinology, and of Molecular Endocrinology, and associate editor of the Journal of Investigative Medicine. It is anticipated that he will assume the directorship of the endocrinology fellowship program at the University of Michigan at the end of his first year of appointment.

Summary of Recommendation:

Dr. Auchus is an extremely productive educator, researcher and clinician who is recognized internationally for his expertise in the field of adrenal steroid metabolism. He will be a significant contributor as he continues his translational research on adrenal steroidogenesis at the University of Michigan. I am pleased, therefore, to recommend the appointment of Richard J. Auchus, M.D., Ph.D. as professor of internal medicine, with tenure, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

NAME: Carlos Mendes de Leon, Ph.D.
TITLE: Professor of Epidemiology, School of Public Health
TENURE STATUS: Tenure
EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011
APPOINTMENT PERIOD: University Year

On the recommendation of the chair of the Department of Epidemiology, and with the endorsement of the Executive Committee of the School of Public Health, we are pleased to recommend the appointment of Carlos Mendes de Leon, Ph.D. as professor of epidemiology, with tenure, School of Public Health, effective January 1, 2011.

Academic Degrees

Professor Mendes de Leon received a Ph.D. in 1988 from the University of Texas Medical Branch, Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences, Galveston, Texas. He majored in preventive medicine and community health.

Professional Record

Upon completion of the Ph.D. degree, Professor Mendes de Leon was a postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Medical Psychology, University of Limburg Medical School (The Netherlands) and a postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Epidemiology and Public Health at Yale University. He was later appointed as an assistant professor in the same department at Yale. From 1996 to 2005, Professor Mendes de Leon served as associate professor of medicine (epidemiology) and associate professor of preventive medicine at Rush University Medical Center. In 2005, he was promoted to professor in both departments. In 2008, he became the director of the Section on Community Epidemiology Research, Department of Medicine, Rush University Medical Center.

Summary of Evaluation

Professor Mendes de Leon's research focuses primarily on psychosocial influences in health during late life. Included within this work is an emphasis on disability, cognitive functioning, and health disparities (especially those involving Latinos). He has substantial expertise in the methodological aspects of community-based epidemiologic research and he works closely with a wide range of multidisciplinary research teams. Professor Mendes de Leon has published 113 articles in peer-reviewed journals and 10 chapters in edited volumes. Of these peer-reviewed papers, he is either the first or sole author of 30. Since becoming a professor in 2005, Professor Mendes de Leon has published a total of 43 peer-reviewed papers. His work has consistently been published in the best journals, including: the American Journal of Public Health, the American Journal of Epidemiology, Archives of Internal Medicine, and the Journal of Gerontology: Social Sciences. Professor Mendes de Leon has a solid record of funding from the National Institutes of Health. He is presently the principal investigator of two ROIs and co-investigator of three ROIs all of which have been funded by the National Institute on Aging.

Professor Mendes de Leon has taught at Rush University for the past 14 years as a lecturer in epidemiology and biostatistics. Moreover, he has been an individual research mentor for 11 junior faculty members at Rush University Medical Center. He has been a faculty member of the National Institute of Health Summer Institute on Randomized Clinical Trials Involving Behavioral Interventions.

Professor Mendes de Leon has been very active in service at the national level. He has served on several grant review panels for the National Institute on Aging, the National Institutes of Health Center for Scientific Review Epidemiology of Chronic Disease/Cardiovascular and Sleep Epidemiology, the American Heart Association, and the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research. He currently serves on the editorial boards of four journals: Journal of Aging and Health, International Journal of Behavioral Medicine, Psychosomatic Research, and the Archives of Internal Medicine. In addition, he was the associate editor for the Journal of Gerontology: Social Sciences from 2006-2009.

Excerpts from External Review

Reviewer (A): “His conceptualizations ... use of analytic techniques that model longitudinal and non-monotonic relationships over time, and corroboration of these associations using multiple measures ... and outcomes have advanced our knowledge Carlos has made significant contributions to the field of social epidemiology.”

Reviewer (B): “Without a doubt, Dr. Mendes de Leon is one of the foremost scholars in the epidemiology of aging ... I would rate Dr. Mendes de Leon to be among the very best and brightest epidemiologists conducting age-related research.”

Reviewer (C): “Carlos has been a very consistent contributor to the research literature in epidemiology and a reliable scholar in his area of study. His impact is recognized by his success in garnering extramural grants ... and by his very important collaborations at Rush Medical School ... I know from the ‘grapevine’ ...that Carlos is a highly valued colleague.”

Reviewer (D): “I am not surprised that Michigan is considering him as Professor of Epidemiology. In my opinion, he would be an outstanding hire. I recommend in the strongest terms that you pursue his appointment with great vigor. Congratulations on making such a wise choice.”

Reviewer (E): “He has a strong publication record that shows a consistent commitment to work in [his] area. I would characterize his contributions to epidemiological literature in social epidemiology and aging by the conceptual clarity and methodological rigor of his work. I would not hesitate to offer him a position in my department”

Reviewer (F): "Carlos has been an extremely productive scholar. [He] is also a clever analyst ... With his extensive publications and his work in geriatrics and health disparities, he has acquired a national and international reputation for excellence."

Reviewer (G): "Carlos' scholarly record is clearly worthy of an appointment to a tenured professorship and I am delighted to recommend him to you without any reservation, whatsoever. I would love to have him here."

NAME: Petra Kupperts

CURRENT TITLES: Associate Professor of English Language and Literature, with tenure, Associate Professor of Women's Studies, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Associate Professor of Art, without tenure, School of Art and Design, and Associate Professor of Theatre and Drama, without tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance

TITLE BEING RENEWED: Associate Professor of Theatre and Drama, without tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

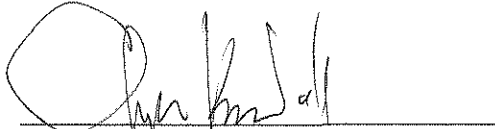

On the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the School of Music, Theatre & Dance, and with the endorsement of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts and the School of Art and Design, we are pleased to recommend the reappointment of Petra Kupperts as associate professor of theatre and drama, without tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance, effective January 1, 2011.

Professor Kupperts received a M.A. in film and TV studies from the University of Warwick, UK, a second M.A. in Germanistik, film, TV and theatre studies, and social anthropology from the University of Cologne, Germany, a Diploma in health and social welfare studies from Open University, UK, and a Ph.D. in performance studies and feminist theory from Falmouth College of Arts, UK. From 1994-1998, Professor Kupperts was a lecturer in film and cultural studies and in visual and performing arts at the Swansea Institute of Higher Education. In 1998, she was a fellow in the Contemporary Arts Department at Manchester Metropolitan University. Professor Kupperts joined the faculty at Bryant University in 2001 as an assistant professor and was promoted to associate professor in 2005. In 2006, Professor Kupperts joined the University of Michigan as associate professor of English language and literature, with tenure, in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts.

Professor Kupperts' concentration in performance studies, feminist theory, and disability as an element in contemporary performance will enrich the programs in the Department of Theatre & Drama. As is evidenced by Professor Kupperts' curriculum vitae, her publication record, presentations at national and international conferences, and her artistic contributions will add relevance and dimension to our programs. Her knowledge and experience in these areas will also help provide a richer and more varied learning environment for our students and colleagues.

In 2006, the Department of Theatre & Drama granted a courtesy appointment to Professor Koppers, and we request that this relationship continue. Therefore, we are pleased to recommend the reappointment of Petra Koppers as associate professor of theatre and drama, without tenure, School of Music, Theatre & Dance, effective January 1, 2011.

NAME: Alfred Franzblau, M.D.

CURRENT TITLES: Professor of Occupational Medicine, with tenure, Department of Environmental Health Sciences, School of Public Health and Associate Professor of Internal Medicine, without tenure, Medical School

ADDITIONAL TITLE: Associate Dean for Research, School of Public Health

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013

I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Alfred Franzblau, M.D. as associate dean for research, School of Public Health, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013.

Dr. Franzblau received a B.A. degree in 1975 from Northwestern University, an M.S. in 1978 from Stanford University, and an M.D. in 1983 from the University of California, San Diego. He completed his residency training in internal medicine at the University of Washington, and had advanced training in occupational and environmental medicine at The Mount Sinai Hospital in New York. Dr. Franzblau joined the faculty at the University of Michigan in 1989 as assistant professor of occupational medicine, School of Public Health and assistant professor of internal medicine, Medical School. He was promoted to associate professor of occupational medicine, with tenure, in 1996 and to professor of occupational medicine in 2003. Dr. Franzblau was promoted to associate professor of internal medicine, without tenure, in 2000. Since 1997, he has also held an appointment as associate research scientist in the Center for Ergonomics, Department of Industrial and Operations Engineering, College of Engineering.

Dr. Franzblau is an outstanding mentor and innovative teacher whose courses are critical to the curriculum in the department and the school. In his capacity as an occupational physician, he has also played a leading role in the teaching and mentoring of occupational medicine residents. He has provided significant service to the department and school, including service on the school's advisory committee on academic programs and the executive committee. At the university level, Dr. Franzblau has played an especially important role in the Health IRB where he has served as co-chair. He also worked on the University of Michigan Dioxin Exposure Study.

Dr. Franzblau has conducted high quality research across a range of occupational health issues and has published extensively in a broad range of prestigious journals. He is recognized both nationally and internationally for his scholarly contributions on various aspects of work-related musculoskeletal disorders, biological monitoring of chemical exposures, occupational neurological disease, occupational respiratory disease and environmental exposure assessment for dioxins and other persistent environmental chemicals. The external funding for his research has been significant and consistent.

By virtue of his academic credentials and teaching and research experience, Dr. Franzblau is highly qualified to deal with the duties of this position. It is a pleasure to recommend his appointment as associate dean for research, School of Public Health, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013.

NAME: Elisabeth Gerber

CURRENT TITLE: Professor of Public Policy, with tenure, Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy

ADDITIONAL TITLE: Professor of Political Science, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

TERM: Five Years, Renewable

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2015

On the recommendation of the Executive Committees of the Department of Political Science and the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and with the endorsement of the Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy, we are pleased to recommend the joint appointment of Elisabeth Gerber as professor of political science, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, for a five-year renewable term, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2015.

Elisabeth Gerber attended the University of Michigan where she received her Bachelor of Arts in 1986, Master of Arts in 1989, and Doctorate in 1991. She began her teaching career as an assistant professor at the California Institute of Technology in 1991. She was appointed as an assistant professor at the University of California, San Diego in 1993 and promoted to associate professor in 1998. Professor Gerber joined the faculty at Michigan as a professor in the Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy and director of the State and Local Policy Center in 2001. She is also a faculty associate in the Center for Political Studies.

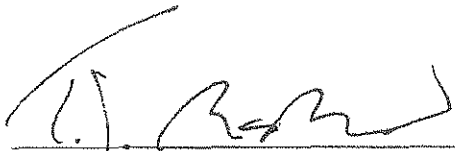

Professor Gerber is one of the most accomplished political scientists in the nation. She has conducted path-breaking work on representation, political parties, and elections, and she is one of the most prominent scholars of initiatives and referenda.

Professor Gerber regularly attends research seminars in the Department of Political Science and frequently sits on dissertation committees. Her expertise complements the strengths of the faculty and she will be an excellent resource for students and faculty in the areas of initiative and referenda. Professor Gerber will provide mentoring for graduate students and junior faculty members, and help with the hiring of new faculty and attracting graduate students.

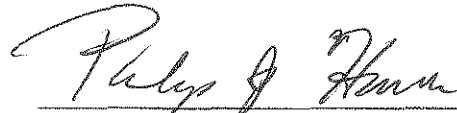

We are very pleased to recommend the joint appointment of Elisabeth Gerber as professor of political science, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, for a five-year renewable term, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2015.

EFFECTIVE DATES: February 1, 2011 through January 31, 2016

I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Ken Resnicow as the Irwin M. Rosenstock Collegiate Professor of Public Health, School of Public Health, effective February 1, 2011 through January 31, 2016.

Professor Rosenstock provided leadership in developing the School's research and teaching program in health behavior and health education. He was internationally known for being one of the developers of the Health Belief Model, a theory to explain health-related behavior, that is widely applied today in public health interventions. The Irwin M. Rosenstock Collegiate Professorship in Public Health was approved by the Regents of the University in December 2010 and is funded with school resources.

Professor Resnicow holds a B.A. (1980) in psychology and philosophy from Yeshiva College and a Ph.D. (1985) in health psychology from Albert Einstein College of Medicine and the Ferkauf Graduate School. From 1985-94 he served as a senior research scientist, Division of Health Promotion Research at the American Health Foundation, while also serving as an adjunct assistant professor in the Department of Health Education at Columbia University Teachers College. Professor Resnicow joined the faculty at Emory University Rollins School of Public Health in 1995 as an associate professor, and was promoted to professor in 1999. He joined the University of Michigan faculty in 2003 as professor of health behavior and health education.

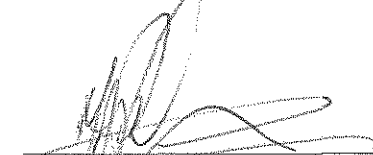

Professor Resnicow is an outstanding faculty member with excellent methodological research credentials as well as a clear record of strong collaborative research leading to publications in first-rate journals. With his expertise in health communications, including eHealth intervention strategies and motivational interviewing methods, he has made strong contributions to the teaching program in the Department of Health Behavior and Health Education and is a valued research mentor for our graduate students. His research interests include: the design and evaluation of health promotion programs for special populations, particularly cardiovascular and cancer prevention interventions for African Americans; understanding the relationship between ethnicity and health behaviors; school-based health promotion programs; substance use prevention and harm reduction and motivational interviewing for chronic disease prevention.

Professor Resnicow is a highly successful and productive behavioral sciences researcher, well-recognized both nationally and internationally. His work is known for its conceptual clarity and methodological vision. His appointment to this professorship will be a well deserved recognition of his valuable contributions.

I am pleased to recommend the appointment of Ken Resnicow as the Irwin M. Rosenstock Collegiate Professor of Public Health, School of Public Health, effective February 1, 2011 through January 31, 2016.

ACTION REQUEST: Joint Appointment for a Faculty Member

NAME: Jennifer E. Robertson

CURRENT TITLES: Professor of Anthropology and Women's Studies, with tenure, and Professor of the History of Art, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

ADDITIONAL TITLE: Professor of Art and Design, without tenure, School of Art and Design

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

With the support of the Executive Committee of the School of Art and Design, and with the endorsement of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, we are pleased to recommend the joint appointment of Jennifer E. Robertson as professor of art and design, without tenure, School of Art and Design, effective January 1, 2011.

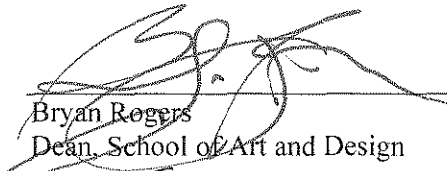

Jennifer E. Robertson joined the University of Michigan anthropology faculty in 1991 as an associate professor, with tenure, and was promoted to professor in 1997. In addition, she has served as director of the Center for Japanese Studies, chair of the ethnology subfield in the Department of Anthropology, and associate chair of the Department of Anthropology. Previously, she held faculty appointments at the University of California at San Diego and at Williams College.

Professor Robertson has a strong commitment to interdisciplinary education, with a background in studio art as well as art history, anthropology, and women's studies. Her research into images and art-making aligns with School of Art and Design initiatives to underpin studio practice with rigorous historical and cultural dialogue. Planning is underway with Professor Robertson for studio and seminar teaching collaborations and cross listing of courses. A courtesy appointment in Art and Design would formalize Professor Robertson's engagement with the School and provide her a platform to further explore and expand her own studio practice.

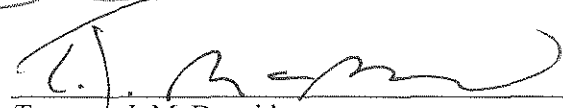

We respectfully request approval of the joint appointment of Jennifer E. Robertson as professor of art and design, without tenure, School of Art and Design, effective January 1, 2011.

ACTION REQUEST: Academic Administrative Appointment for a Faculty Member and Additional Appointment to an Endowed Professorship

NAME: Steven P. Schwendeman

CURRENT TITLE: Professor of Pharmaceutical Sciences, with tenure, College of Pharmacy

ADDITIONAL TITLES: Chair, Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, and Ara G. Paul
Professor of Pharmaceutical Sciences, College of Pharmacy

TERM: Three Years (Chair)
Five Years (Professorship)

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

With the endorsement of the Executive Committee of the College of Pharmacy, we are pleased to recommend the appointment of Steven P. Schwendeman as chair, Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, College of Pharmacy, for a three-year renewable term, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013, and as the Ara G. Paul Professor of Pharmaceutical Sciences, College of Pharmacy, for a five-year renewable term, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2015.

The Ara G. Paul Professorship was established in 1998 through generous gifts from alumni and friends of the College in recognition of the accomplishments of Ara G. Paul during his tenure as dean. The purpose of the professorship is to support the research and instructional activities of a prominent scholar whose presence on the faculty will contribute significantly to the education of graduate and professional degree students at the College of Pharmacy.

Professor Schwendeman earned his BSE in chemical engineering in 1986 and his PhD/MS in pharmaceuticals in 1992, all from the University of Michigan.

Professor Schwendeman is a highly distinguished scientist who is a world-renowned leader in the area of protein stability. He combines polymer science, microencapsulation techniques, and protein stability in order to address the fundamental physical and chemical properties of the microenvironment of the PLGA-based carriers in delivering macromolecular drugs such as protein drugs and vaccines. He has published numerous papers and been invited to present his work all over the world, having a significant impact in his field.

Professor Schwendeman is also a very effective and innovative teacher who participates in the professional degree and graduate degree programs at the College of Pharmacy. He is well received by our students as evidenced by his remarkable teaching evaluation scores, despite the difficulty of the subject matter that he teaches, and is recognized as an outstanding mentor. His commitment to teaching is excellent. Professor Schwendeman has made significant service contributions to his profession, having served as a member of several professional societies and as a reviewer for numerous journals, advisory boards, and granting organizations. He is an outstanding citizen of the College, currently serving as a member of the College's Executive Committee.

Professor Schwendeman is an outstanding scholar whose performance in teaching, research, and service is exemplary. He has demonstrated a strong commitment to furthering the objectives and goals of the College of Pharmacy, is a dedicated teacher, and is a recognized leader in the pharmaceutical sciences community with an international reputation.

It is with the enthusiastic support of the College of Pharmacy Executive Committee that we recommend the appointment of Steven P. Schwendeman as chair, Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, College of Pharmacy, for a three-year renewable term, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013, and as the Ara G. ACTION REQUEST: Establishment of an Endowed Collegiate Professorship
PROPOSED NAME: Major M. Ash Collegiate Professorship in Periodontics,
School of Dentistry
EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

The Dean and the Executive Committee of the School of Dentistry are pleased to recommend the establishment of the Major M. Ash Collegiate Professorship in Periodontics, School of Dentistry, effective January 1, 2011.

This professorship will be funded by the Major Ash Endowment Fund. This professorship will honor the tremendous impact Professor Ash had on the Graduate Periodontics Program in perpetuity.

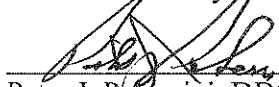

In 1947, Professor Ash received a BS in chemistry from Michigan State University, a DDS in 1951 from Emory University in Georgia, and in 1954 he received a MS in periodontics from the University of Michigan. While working for that degree, he was an instructor in Periodontics and Oral Pathology. He was promoted to an assistant professor in 1956, to associate professor in 1959, and to professor in 1962. He was named the Marcus L. Ward Professor of Dentistry in 1984. When he retired in 1989, he was named the Marcus L. Ward Professor of Dentistry Emeritus, professor emeritus, and research scientist emeritus in 1989.

At the University of Michigan, Professor Ash founded and chaired the first occlusion department in the United States from 1969-1987, directed the TMJ/Oral Facial Pain Clinic and Stomatognathic Physiology Laboratory from 1969-1987 and was a member of many School of Dentistry committees, including several appointments to the Executive Committee. Professor Ash was also active throughout his career with numerous local, state, national, and international dental and periodontal associations. Professor Ash published more than 200 articles in scientific journals and was well known for his 70 textbooks. During his career, Professor Ash did field research with the Nubians in Southern Egypt, developed the first miniaturized electronic tooth, and was mentor to over 100 graduate students.

During his distinguished 53-year career with the University of Michigan, School of Dentistry that began in 1953 and continued after he retired in 1989. Professor Ash established a global reputation as a clinical researcher, prolific writer, mentor, and professor extraordinaire.

A distinguished faculty member will be nominated to receive this honor. The initial term of appointment will be for five years with the possibility of renewal.

ACTION REQUEST: Establishment of a Collegiate Professorship

PROPOSED NAME: Terry J. Bergstrom Collegiate Professorship for Resident
Education in Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences, Medical School

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

On the recommendation of Paul R. Lichter, M.D., the F. Bruce Fralick Professor and Chair of the Department of Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences, and with the concurrence of the Executive Committee of the Medical School, I am pleased to recommend the establishment of the Terry J. Bergstrom Collegiate Professorship for Resident Education in Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

This collegiate professorship is being established through gifts from friends and alumni of the Department of Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences. The Terry J. Bergstrom Collegiate Professorship for Resident Education in Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences is intended to support the director of Resident Education. The initial term for this professorship is five years and the appointment may be renewed.

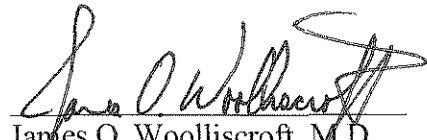

Terry J. Bergstrom, M.D. received his medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1965. He served as a pilot and flight surgeon in the United States Air Force for 25 years. He completed a glaucoma fellowship at the University of Michigan in 1975. Dr. Bergstrom became a faculty member at the University of Michigan in 1980, and retired at the rank of professor in 2004. He currently serves as professor emeritus of ophthalmology and visual sciences. From 1981-1987, he served as chief of the Glaucoma Service, and from 1983-1985, chief of Low Vision Service in the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Michigan. Dr. Bergstrom also served as chief of the Ophthalmology Section of the Veterans Affairs Medical Center from 1986-1994. He was director of the Residency Program at the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Michigan from 1991-1998.

Dr. Bergstrom's most enduring legacy is his role as an educator. Throughout his career, he has trained more than 200 Ophthalmology residents and fellows, and has taught thousands of medical students. He received the Department of Ophthalmology's teaching award 16 times, which prompted the residents to name the annual award the Terry Bergstrom Resident Teaching Award. Dr. Bergstrom was also awarded various teaching awards from the University of Michigan Medical School classes.

The establishment of the Terry J. Bergstrom Collegiate Professorship for Resident Education in Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences will carry on Dr. Bergstrom's legacy of caring for his students and their education. I am pleased, therefore, to recommend the establishment of the Terry J. Bergstrom Collegiate Professorship for Resident Education in Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

ACTION REQUEST: Establishment of a Collegiate Professorship

PROPOSED NAME: Eric J. Topol Collegiate Professorship in Cardiovascular Medicine, Medical School

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

On the recommendation of John M. Carethers, M.D., the John G. Searle Professor and Chair of the Department of Internal Medicine, and with the concurrence of the Executive Committee of the Medical School, I am pleased to recommend the establishment of the Eric J. Topol Collegiate Professorship in Cardiovascular Medicine, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

This collegiate professorship is being established through resources within the Division of Cardiovascular Medicine in the Department of Internal Medicine. The University of Michigan Cardiovascular Center also intends to support this professorship through funds derived through philanthropy. The Topol Collegiate Professorship in Cardiovascular Medicine is intended to support the academic endeavors of a senior faculty member in the Department of Internal Medicine with expertise in cardiovascular medicine. The recipient also may serve as the clinical or research director of the Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory in the Division of Cardiovascular Medicine. The initial appointment period for the Topol Collegiate Professor may be up to five years, and the appointment may be renewed.

Dr. Topol is a world renowned cardiologist who was a faculty member at the University of Michigan from 1985-1991, where he rapidly rose through the academic ranks to achieve the title of professor of internal medicine. From 1987-1991, he served as director of both the Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory and the Interventional Cardiology Program in the Department of Internal Medicine at the University of Michigan. This was a time of rapid advancement in the treatment of acute myocardial infarction. Dr. Topol was instrumental in defining the role of coronary thrombolysis as a lifesaving treatment for acute myocardial infarction, with later seminal contributions in understanding the role of platelets, percutaneous coronary interventions, and genetics in acute coronary syndromes. Dr. Topol has been recognized by the Institute of Scientific Information (ISI) to be in the top 10 cited biomedical researchers in medicine over the past decade. He was elected to the membership of the Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Sciences in 2004.

This professorship will honor Dr. Topol for his many clinical and research contributions to the subspecialty of interventional cardiology at the University of Michigan and to the field of cardiology. I am very pleased, therefore, to recommend the establishment of the Eric J. Topol Collegiate Professorship in Cardiovascular Medicine, Medical School, effective January 1, 2011.

ACTION REQUEST: Transfer of Tenure for a Faculty Member

NAME: Julie Ellison

CURRENT TITLES: Professor of American Culture, with tenure, Professor of English Language and Literature, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and Professor of Art, without tenure, School of Art and Design

RECOMMENDED TITLES: Professor of American Culture, with tenure, Professor of English Language and Literature, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and Professor of Art, without tenure, School of Art and Design

On the recommendation of the Executive Committees of the Program in American Culture, the Department of English Language and Literature, and the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and with the endorsement of the School of Art and Design, we are pleased to recommend a transfer of tenure for Julie Ellison from professor of American culture, with tenure, professor of English language and literature, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and professor of art, without tenure, School of Art and Design, to professor of American culture, with tenure, professor of English language and literature, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and professor of art, without tenure, School of Art and Design, effective January 1, 2011.

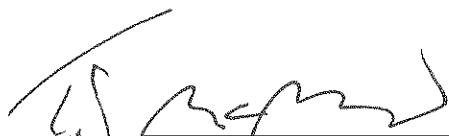

Julie Ellison received her Bachelor of Arts, magna cum laude, from Harvard University in 1973 and Doctorate from Yale University in 1980. Professor Ellison joined our faculty as an assistant professor in 1980 and was promoted through the ranks to professor in 1991. She was appointed as professor of art, without tenure, in the School of Art and Design in 2004.

Professor Ellison held a tenured-track appointment in English from 1988 until 2003 when she shifted her tenure line to the Program in American Culture, retaining a courtesy appointment in English. At that time the focus of her research had shifted toward more interdisciplinary work, particularly in the public humanities. She is asking for the move back into English because she views that department as an intellectual and pedagogical community in which literary history, print culture, and the sites and scenes of writing are central. Most of her current undergraduate classes, such as "Public Poetry" and "Getting In: What College Means in America," are meet-togethers with English and, when appropriate, fulfill the upper level writing requirement. Other senior seminars and graduate classes have focused on changing modes in cultural production and the poetics of the cultural project. She would like to make literary materials and questions more central to these courses. She also wishes to update the courses she use to teach in English, including those on transatlantic print culture, narrative poems in the age of the novel, and emotion.

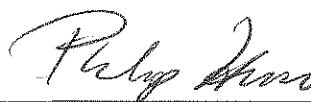

We are very pleased to recommend a transfer of tenure for Julie Ellison from the Program in American Culture to a split between the Program in American Culture and the Department of English Language and Literature, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011.

ACTION REQUEST: Transfer of Tenure for a Faculty Member

NAME: Joseph P. Gone

CURRENT TITLES: Associate Professor of Psychology, with tenure, and Associate Professor of American Culture, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

RECOMMENDED TITLES: Associate Professor of Psychology, with tenure, and Associate Professor of American Culture, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

EFFECTIVE DATE: January 1, 2011

On the recommendation of the Executive Committees of the Department of Psychology and the and the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and with the endorsement of the Program in American Culture, we are pleased to recommend a transfer of tenure for Joseph P. Gone from associate professor of psychology, with tenure, and associate professor of American culture, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, to associate professor of psychology, with tenure, and associate professor of American culture, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011.

Joseph P. Gone completed his Bachelor of Arts at Harvard College in 1992. He attended the University of Illinois where he received his Master of Arts in 1996 and Doctorate in 2001. Professor Gone began his teaching career as an assistant professor at the University of Chicago in 2000 and was appointed to the tenure track at Michigan in 2002. He was promoted to associate professor, with tenure, in 2010.

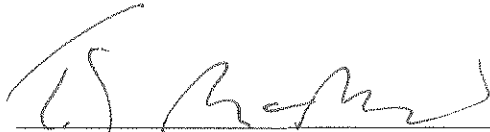

Professor Gone plays an important role in the Native American ethnic studies group, Program in American Culture, but it is difficult for him to find appropriate courses to teach. In the Department of Psychology he has played a central role in revamping the clinical psychology training program. He endorses the importance of training students in cultural variations in how mental illness becomes apparent, how it is diagnosed, how the community responds to such a diagnosis, and how it is treated. Diagnosis and treatment are not the same for everyone. He models for students the ability to attend to cultural differences while engaging in scientifically valid research on mental health diagnosis, treatment, distributions of services, etc.

The undergraduate courses related to psychopathology are among the most important in the department, and Professor Gone has taught the introduction to psychopathology course. With this shift in effort and tenure, he can also teach an advanced undergraduate course as well as his graduate course each year.

We are very pleased to recommend a transfer of tenure for Joseph P. Gone from associate professor of psychology, with tenure, and associate professor of American culture, with tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, to associate professor of psychology, with tenure, and associate professor of American culture, without tenure, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011

NAME: Esrold A. Nurse

CURRENT TITLE: Assistant Dean for Student Academic Affairs, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

RECOMMENDED TITLE: Assistant Dean for Undergraduate Education, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2015

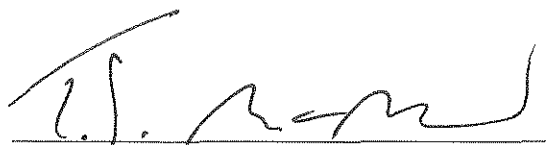

The Dean and the Executive Committee of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts recommend the change in title for Esrold A. Nurse from assistant dean for student academic affairs to assistant dean for undergraduate education, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2015.

Esrold Nurse received his Bachelor of Arts from the University of Wisconsin in 1976, Master of Arts from Western Michigan University in 1978, and Doctorate from the University of Wisconsin at Madison in 1994.

Mr. Nurse began his career as a counselor in the Office of Student Development at the University of Wisconsin at Parkside in 1979. After several promotions he became the director of the Office of Minority Student Services in 1985. In 1988 he transferred to the administrative staff at the University of Wisconsin at Madison as director of the mentor program. Here, again, he was promoted through several positions that culminated in associate director of undergraduate admissions in 1992. He joined the administrative staff as an assistant dean in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts in 1995. Under Mr. Nurse's leadership, Student Academic Affairs has forged strong ties between academic advising, faculty, and leadership in LSA student government that has resulted in an exceptionally smooth operation for providing students the information and insight they need for their selection of courses and concentrations. His deep understanding of the practical ways in which the various pieces of the College curriculum interact continues to be a valuable resource for the College Curriculum Committee, the Dean's Office, and the Office of the Registrar.

We are very pleased to recommend the change in title for Esrold A. Nurse from assistant dean for student academic affairs to assistant dean for undergraduate education, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2015.

ACTION REQUEST: Faculty Appointment to a Visiting Professorship

NAME: Dick Siegel

RECOMMENDED TITLE: Helen L. DeRoy Visiting Professor in Honors, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through April 30, 2011

On the recommendation of the Executive Committees of the Honors Program and the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, we are pleased to recommend the appointment of Dick Siegel as the Helen L. DeRoy Visiting Professor in Honors, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011 through April 30, 2011. Mr. Siegel held this title during winter term 2010. The course was so well received by the students in the Honors Program that we are inviting him back to serve in this role for a second term.

In 1981 the Helen L. DeRoy Visiting Professorship in Honors was established to support the University's Honors Program. The Honors Program's DeRoy Visiting Professors Subcommittee selects and nominates distinguished visitors, with preference to those outside the academy, to teach in the Honors Program.

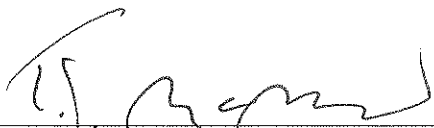

Dick Siegel graduated with honors in English from the University of Michigan, where he was also a Hopwood Award winner. He has achieved renown in an active performance and composing career around the country. A member of the Detroit Music Hall of Fame and the recipient of awards such as multiple Detroit Music Awards and the Kerrville Music Festival's New Folk Award, Mr. Siegel is known for his engagingly unconventional lyrics and a dynamic musical style that incorporates modern folk and jazz. Trained in classical music, he discovered the powerful imagery in Dylan Thomas' and T. S. Eliot's poetry while studying English literature; these influences are still seen in his lyrics. Mr. Siegel was named in WDET's list of the most important and influential artists in the history of Detroit, alongside such legends as Stevie Wonder and Aretha Franklin. A longtime National Public Radio staple, his songs have been featured on stations such as Austin's KUT, New York's WFUV, and San Francisco's KPFA, as well as syndicated shows including Mountain Stage and All Things Considered.

Mr. Siegel will again teach a course for the Honors Program entitled "Singing Out of Our Minds": A Songwriting Workshop. He and the students in this course will also present a public performance at the end of the semester. He has already given a "Lunch with Honors" presentation to students. This course is part of our endeavor to encourage interdisciplinarity and creativity. Music is a vital part of the life of many students; this course seeks to develop that interest in the context of their intellectual lives.

We are very pleased to recommend the appointment of Dick Siegel as the Helen L. DeRoy Visiting Professor in Honors, College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, effective January 1, 2011 through April 30, 2011.

ACTION REQUEST: Reappointment to a Collegiate Professorship

NAME: Brian P. Green

CURRENT TITLE: Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professor, and Professor of Accounting, with tenure, College of Business

TITLE BEING RENEWED: Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professor, College of Business

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013

On the recommendation of the University of Michigan-Dearborn Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professor Selection Committee and the Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, I am pleased to recommend the reappointment of Brian P. Green as the Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professor, College of Business, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013.

The Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professorship was established in 2006 as a tribute to a distinguished educator and administrator who was an inspiration to students and faculty while at UM-Dearborn. The professorship recognizes a distinguished faculty member who exemplifies the core values of public service and trust and is a distinguished teacher who can carry on Dr. Czarnecki's strong legacy of teaching excellence. The appointment to a Czarnecki Collegiate Professorship is made for a three-year term.

Professor Green received his B.S. degree in accounting in 1979 and his MBA in 1981 from Central Michigan University. He earned his Ph.D. degree in accounting from the Kent State University in 1991. Professor Green joined the faculty of the Department of Accounting and Finance, College of Finance, as an assistant professor in 1992, and was promoted to associate professor in 1997. He is a gifted teacher, who brings high energy and enthusiasm to his classes. Unit administrators highly value Professor Green's enthusiasm, commitment and willingness to do whatever it takes to support the department, the school and the university. Since the start of his career at UM-Dearborn in 1991, he has published more than 45 refereed journal articles, two books, and has presented 85 papers at academic refereed conferences. He was the recipient of the University's 2000 Distinguished Faculty Research Award, the 2003 Michigan Associate of CPA's Accounting Educator of the Year Award, and the 2006 American Accounting Association President's Region Award for Service. In 2009, he received the Michigan Association of CPA's Distinguished Achievement in Accounting Education Award.

I am pleased to recommend the reappointment of Brian P. Green as the Richard E. Czarnecki Collegiate Professor, College of Business, effective January 1, 2011 through December 31, 2013.

EFFECTIVE DATES: January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2011

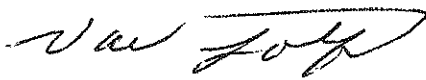

The Dean and the Executive Committee of the School of Management at the University of Michigan-Flint, recommend the reappointment of Yener Kandogan as associate dean, School of Management, effective January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2011.

Professor Kandogan received his B.Sc and M.Sc degrees from Bilkent University in 1993 and 1996, respectively, and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan in 2001. He joined the faculty at the University of Michigan-Flint as an assistant professor in 2002 and was promoted to associate professor, with tenure, in 2006. He served as special assistant to the dean for academic programs from July 1, 2006 to August 31, 2007, until he was appointed as associate dean on September 1, 2007.

Professor Kandogan has served on numerous university committees including the Higher Learning Commission Self-Study Committee, Master Plan Committee, General Education Steering Committee, Thompson Center for Learning and Teaching Advisory Board, and the Provost Search Committee. He has also served on the School of Management Maintenance of Accreditation Committee, Research and Publications Committee, Graduate Committee and on several faculty and staff search committees.

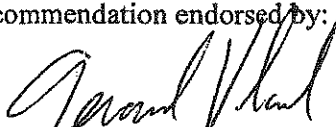

We are very pleased to recommend the reappointment of Yener Kandogan as associate dean, School of Management, effective January 1, 2011 through August 31, 2011.
